

Young Accounting Scholars Network

Young Accounting Scholars Network is a network of leading UK universities that promotes dissemination of accounting research by young academics (lecturers within five years of finishing the PhD). The network supports accounting scholars by promoting and facilitating research presentations during staff seminars at partner universities. Each university in the network hosts a speaker from the partner university and the visit includes a research presentation and meetings with academics at the host institution.

2017/18		2018/19
Home institution	Host institution	Home institution	Host institution
University of Bristol	>Cass Business School	University of Bristol	>University of Exeter
Cass Business School	>University of Exeter	Cass Business School	>Lancaster University Management School
University of Exeter	>Lancaster University Management School	University of Exeter	>London School of Economics and Political Science
Lancaster University Management School	>London School of Economics and Political Science	Lancaster University Management School	>Alliance Manchester Business School
London School of Economics and Political Science	>Alliance Manchester Business School	London School of Economics and Political Science	>University of Bristol
Alliance Manchester Business School	>University of Bristol	Alliance Manchester Business School	>Cass Business School

The match between the home and the host university rotates on annual basis so that each university hosts a speaker from a different partner each year. Future goals of the network include promoting (1) short-term visits to partner universities, (2) collaborative research projects between scholars from partner universities, (3) knowledge exchange via an annual conference and (4) further training via focused workshops and seminars. The current coordinator for the network is Dr Pawel Bilinski pawel.bilinski.1@city.ac.uk